It's also that time of the week when I share some interesting news. I read an article on how to accelerate the work of your Photoshop. It's a brand new beta that was released last week and that will be available for download as a permanent release this Friday. I think it's pretty cool because it claims to offer a lot more than the usual Photoshop acceleration options out there on the internet, even though I still don't fully understand how it works. Read the original article and check the video demo of the beta here: How to accelerate the work of Photoshop ]]>New educational add-on available Thu, 13 Jan 2009 00:59:40 +0000
