Product Activation and Licensing

Activation is the final step after installation. In this step, you activate product features based on what you purchased. National Instruments uses activation with many products to improve the efficiency of delivering software to customers. With activation, you can download evaluation software and activate the full-featured version once you have purchased it. Additionally, activation facilitates software asset management for large organizations.

The form below is one of several methods you can use to activate your product. For more information or help activating your product, visit the Product Activation page.
